

Dear Members and Friends,

Welcome to the C-Change website and thank you for your interest in the fight against cancer. Each year, more than 1 million Americans will be diagnosed with cancer and 1,500 people will die every day from this disease. Barbara and I have always believed that if we combine the best talents of the public, private, and not-for-profit sectors we can help eliminate cancer as a significant public health threat. With this in mind, nearly a decade ago we founded C-Change, a unique collaboration of leaders from these three sectors.

C-Change has more than 150 members from organizations spanning government agencies and the business and nonprofit sectors. By combining the expertise of the nation's cancer leaders and identifying innovative solutions to challenging questions, C-Change will accelerate our progress towards a future where cancer is prevented, detected early, and cured or managed successfully as a chronic illness.

We encourage you to take some time to visit our website and learn more about C-Change. If you are looking for specific information related to cancer diagnosis or treatment, or need information regarding other cancer topics please click on the links we've provided to our members' organizational websites. Together, these organizations serve as a valuable resource for everything from general cancer information to how to obtain access to screening, treatment, and cancer clinical trials.

Barbara and I want all of you to know that there is hope in the fight against cancer. Now more than ever, there is a need for increased collaborative action against cancer, and C-Change is committed to continuing our efforts in this cause. In fact, C-Change is working on some exciting new initiatives that will be launched later this year, so please visit the site again for updates on our activities.
